

HOW TO USE SOCIAL ENGINEERING TACTICS TO VIEW ANY YAHOO WEBCAM

Social Engineering is the art of manipulating human nature to get what you want, or cause a desired reaction in the average person. The term is mostly used within the computer industry to address the actions of Virus authors. It works, it is powerful, and it has many uses. You can use Social Engineering to get into the tough cams.

I first used Social Engineering to manipulate software or hardware purchases at work. If a new piece of pricey software or hardware came out on the market that I wanted to have, I would go tell my boss that “the company and employees need this software or hardware ASAP,” to quote, “keep things working around here.”

After telling my boss what I wanted, I generally give him a friendly warning advising that if I did not get what I needed and any part of the organizations Information Technology structure subsequently failed, because I did not get what I needed, I would make it a point to tell upper management when I got called onto the carpet about the failure, that the disaster or work stoppage was my boss’s fault, and state that “I told him what we needed to keep things running, and he didn’t purchase it for me.” I have yet to not get what I asked for by using this form of Social Engineering.

Keep in mind that when I engineer a situation such as this, I have done my homework prior, and I can give you some bullshit, technical explanation from hell, that will make your head hurt from listening to me, if you force me to explain why I am asking you for this. Managers seldom ask me for explanations anymore, they just buy things.

DON’T BE THE VICTIM OF SOCIAL ENGINEERING

Hopefully this isn’t going to be a surprise to anyone, but there are a lot of fake people out there running around in Yahoo Chat. They have a lot of different motivations for doing what they do, none of those motivations serve to benefit you, and there’s something you need to keep in mind about this issue pertaining to webcams. If you have not actually seen someone on cam or someone you know hasn’t seen a person on cam; do not consider that as a real webcam, and consume yourself with getting into, until this person is proven to exist. The YahElite chat client for example will let you start a webcam session without a webcam even being attached to a computer. In a chat room, that person shows up as having a cam. Sadly, people in chat rooms argue over viewing these fake cams! I don’t clutter up my cam list with things I have not seen and know to be true.

YOU CANNOT SEE THE FOREST BECAUSE OF THE TREES

As I mentioned on my site, there is no way to view Yahoo webcams without permission. I mention that here, because a lot of people are consumed with the thought of being able to do this. In case you didn’t see it, I wrote an analogy on one of my pages in which I equated viewing without permission to being the trees, and all the webcams that are turned on at any given moment in time as the forest. There are some very powerful lessons to be learned from that analogy. They are as follows:

1. At any given moment, there are so many Yahoo webcams turned on, you are a fool to sit around, wasting your time, and pouring your energy into viewing the ones that are simply are not meant to be viewed right then. Just forget the cams that won't give you permission, and move on to the ones that are open. The ones that denied permission today will be open again sometime in the future, and you can view them then.
2. I sometimes have to remind myself, and you need to remind yourself as well, that every time a chick turns her cam on doesn't equate to nudity and sex. Girls in college with webcams probably turn them on and talk to their parents some days. That's not the kind of stuff they want you to watch, so keep that in mind if someone denies you the right to view their cam. Again, just move on to the next webcam that is open.
3. Do not forget what your source of power is. The biggest thing these cam viewers offer to you is the ability to know when someone turns a cam on. You can't view what you don't know about. That power, and a good cam list, will keep you happy every hour of every day.

DON'T FORGET ABOUT RULE NUMBER ONE

Now let's talk about what I call "Rule Number One!" If every time a chick turns her cam on, you attempt to get on it immediately, she is going to know something is up, and she will start blocking you, because she will think you are either a hacker that has some kind of control over her PC, or a stalker. That's where Rule Number One comes in. Let the chick have her cam on for a few minutes to pick up some viewers before you hit it. You don't want women to feel like you are stalking them, and you have to keep in mind that you really don't know why she is turning her cam on. Remember, maybe she's talking with her Grandmother, and you jerking off during these family moments is not a planned part of those festivities. Again, every time someone's cam gets turned on doesn't mean sex or nudity.

Sometimes it's better to miss a little bit of the show and get in with the automatic retry feature a few minutes later, than it is to get permanently ignored on an established screen name. The only exception to this rule is when a Cam Hoe is in the middle of putting on a show, and she's one of those dumb bitches constantly doing a "re-start" of their cam to appease the whiners in a room that can't get on the cam. Chicks sometimes also do this to get rid of the people on their cams that they don't know. Hint! Hint! It's now time to become "Invisible!"

VIEWING THE DIFFERENT TYPES OF CAM HOES

EASY: The first type of chick we will talk about is the easy to view Cam Hoe. These are the attention whores such as "Sarah_With_A_Smile," that when they are on cam, they are almost always exclusively there to tease, put on a show, or get themselves off. They are a small minority of the chicks on cam. These women are easy to view, once you have their name added to the cam scanner. You'll be getting on their cam every time, because the cam scanner tells you when they have their cam on, and the retry feature makes sure you get in. Enough said.

HARD: The rest of the women are harder to view. These chicks fall into all kinds of possible categories and motivations for being on cam, and they are the ones that will hit “Deny” when you try to view and they don’t know who you are. In this group you have chicks that like to think the people watching them are “their friends,” others may even be single or divorced women trying to land a new boyfriend or husband by showing off a few of their assets on cam. These are the webcams you have to do your homework first to get into consistently.

DO YOUR HOMEWORK FIRST OR YOU WON’T BE VIEWING MUCH

The single most important thing you can do with the Yahoo Screen Names you create to watch webcams is:

“FILL OUT THE PROFILES AND ADD PHOTOS TO THEM!”

That’s right; women and people in general don’t like blank profiles. Remember, women need to feel secure, and everyone has a sixth sense that tells them there’s just something dishonest about people that have a blank profile. Even if they don’t think you are dishonest, at a minimum, they’re going to write you off as being lazy. Trust me, chicks will IGGY (put you on ignore) your ass in a heartbeat for not taking a few minutes to fill out your profile.

FIGURE OUT WHAT KINDS OF CAM HOES YOU WANT TO WATCH

I am a 40 something, balding, slightly overweight, and married with children Computer Geek. I can’t think of a reason in the world any chick other than a true Cam Hoe, with an open cam, would let me watch her. You need to think about what kinds of cams you want to watch, so you can target that audience when you create screen names and profiles. Let me break your heart right now, 99.9% of the young chicks get nauseous at the thought of some hairy old guy watching their cam. I only had to see a chick say that once in a chat room, and I wasn’t old anymore!

To make matters worse, middle-aged and older women will let an 18 year old guy on their cam before they will let your old ass view it. The only explanation I can think of for this phenomenon is the attention from young guys flatters them. I have tested different age screen names on different women, and proven repeatedly what I just said is true.

My most successful screen name is an 18 year old guy named Vanilla_Tusk. Cool name for an 18 year old dude isn’t it? Vanilla_Tusk gets into a lot of cams. Vanilla_Tusk was actually derived from the bottle of Vanilla Musk lotion my wife keeps on her bedside table. Now he’s a Yahoo character that makes chicks believe he’s an up and coming musician in a Rock Band. His profile picture is a hot electric guitar, he’s single and looking, he talks the language of college chicks, knows music, and he’s polite. It is implied here that I generally watch chicks in the 18-22 year old range.

LET THE CHICKS TALK TO YOU FIRST

Probably one of the toughest areas of this cam viewing thing to navigate is deciding which chicks you have to talk with to continue watching their cams, and which chicks don't want you to say a damn thing. My general rule is, I don't talk with them unless they express an interest in talking with me first.

Case in point, there was this 19 year old that I watched off and on for probably two months. I had never seen her do anything worthwhile during that time, but she was good looking, so I kept watching and hoping. One night, I get on her cam and there she is sprawled out naked in a big arm chair going to town with a huge fucking dildo. That show must have lasted for at least 45 minutes and I watched every minute of it. After she was done, and sitting back at her desk all prim and proper, I messaged her and said "Wow, that was really fucking hot!" No sooner did I say that, and that Bitch cut me off her cam, and "IGGIED" my ass for the next two weeks. Now when I watch her, I don't say a fucking word!

WHAT ARE YOU GOING TO SAY?

As you know, I have placed a big emphasis on creating profiles and screen names that make you an attractive candidate for getting into the kinds of cams that you want to watch. This is what you need to be careful about when you create those names and profiles.

Ideally, you want your screen names and profiles to reflect that you are a real and credible person, but the Catch-22 on this is, you better be able to talk about the person you've created if that time ever arrives. If you can't, you may never view that cam on that screen name again.

This means you should be creating screen names based on characters that you naturally have information about as a result of your life experiences. If you're into cars, create screen names and profiles about cars. I've got another screen name that says I'm a 19 year old. This dude has a hot Mustang that chicks would die to take a ride in. They often message me when I'm on their cam and say "Hey, that's a nice car!" This screen name is: "screenage_wasteland." See, another cool name. "Bob462" isn't going to be watching shit!

I don't take profiles to extremes, but if you really want to be slick, you should snatch some photos somewhere of a decent looking, successful, young guy (unless that's really you) and create a wholesome profile that no one would question. Add some family photos etc. The online photo storage sites are a gold mine for getting these pictures.

Another reason for having your photos in the profile is the jam I got into recently. You can't send files with the cam viewer. I was watching a chick's cam and she messaged me that she wanted a picture of me, not the car. And I was faced with getting one to her. Creatively, I told her I was using a Linux box, so I couldn't send the file in chat, but I would email it to her, which I did. Having that photo in the Briefcase or Photo section of my profile would have avoided that.

Do not be a dumb-ass and put some porn star type photo in a profile or make the emphasis of the profile that you are involved with the Olympic Sex Competition of 2006. Any photo you ever use on a profile should look like it was taken with a webcam, or resemble a run of the mill amateur photo that you had developed and scanned at Walmart. The people that run around as bi-females on the Net are fucking morons and unable to figure out this concept, and the average person spots them a mile away with their fake model and porn site pictures. Models and porn stars aren't running around on the Internet talking to people like you, me, or the chicks we watch on cam.

Ever sat waiting for access to view a chick's cam? The truth is women read profiles before they let you on their cams most of the time. At least the first time they let you view. It's a one-shot deal sometimes, so don't fuck it up because you didn't do your homework building the profile.

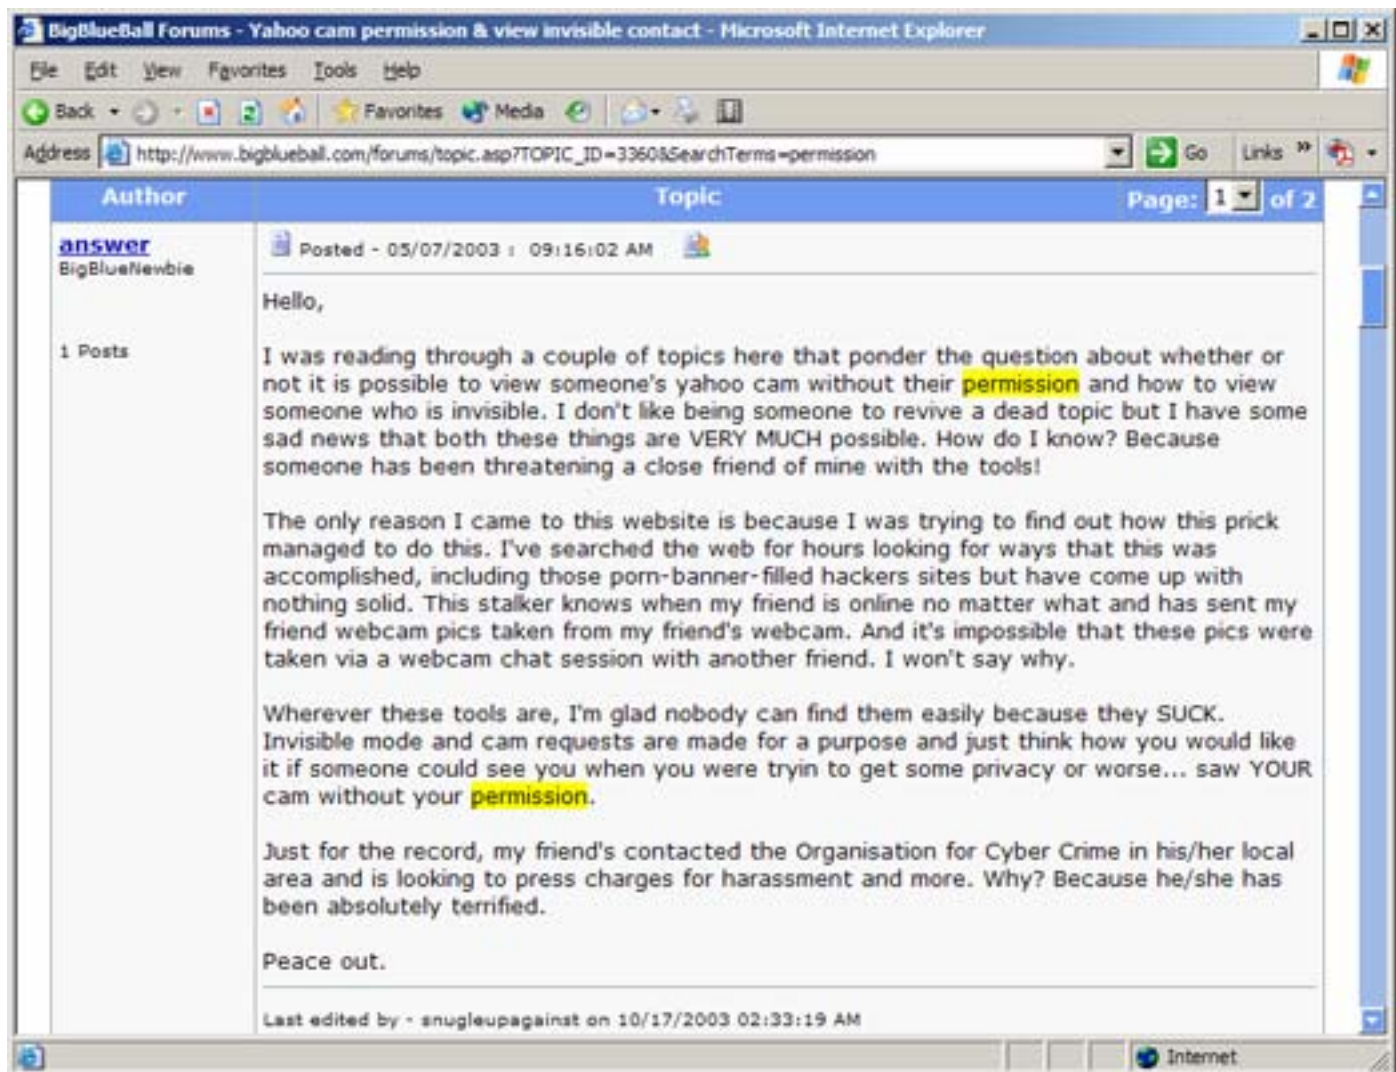

If you're an expert about football and your goal is to watch college age chicks, become a college Half-Back or something in your profile. Be one for a small school, not one you're going to get embarrassed about, because you obviously aren't going to be seen on TV in the Rose Bowl broadcast. The bottom line is "do something with your profiles to make them believable, and don't overdo it to the point where women will start to question if you are a fake!" Give a chick security and the glimmer of hope that you offer something to her, even if she doesn't need it right now, and you'll be viewing.

THE DREADED HOW DO YOU KNOW ABOUT MY CAM QUESTION?

At some point, you are inevitably going to get asked by women how you know about their cam or screen name.

"DO NOT" tell the chick you are running a cam scanner and that you know every time she turns her cam on. If she's some feminist freak, she'll report you to Yahoo and the FBI for stalking her. Even though all she has to do is put you on IGGY to make you go away permanently, and even though you are not doing anything illegal, it could become something you'd rather not be involved in. Don't risk it!

And like this post states, half the time it isn't the chick you're going to have to worry about, it's her psycho (he wants to get in her pants) boyfriend that will do you in.

If you get into this situation, tell the chick this instead; “We talked awhile back in a chat room, God, I can’t remember which one, and you let me “Add” you to my friends list.” Compliment her nicely on her appearance and tell her; “you told me you’re on cam a lot, so I simply open a PM window sometimes, and click view your webcam, in hopes of catching you on. I hope me watching your cam doesn’t bother you, but if it does, please tell me and I won’t do it anymore.”

Whatever you do, be nice, and if she does mind, you now know that screen name is now fucked for that cam. Leave her alone, at least with that Login ID. <Snicker>

Let me also remind you of a very powerful tool that you have at your disposal for getting to know the chicks you see on cam, it something you probably never thought about using in conjunction with this viewer. The Cam Viewer tells you who is on cam, but other software you already have can pinpoint their location. That’s right, if you want to find out if someone is in a chat room, you should simply just type their screen name into the “Goto User” function of Messenger and join them in a room. You may want to do this with an ID that you don’t normally view her with so she won’t pickup on what’s going on.

Keep in mind that it will be a little weird if she's in a room about women's health, with two other chicks talking about menstrual cramps, and you show up. Unfortunately, when you use the "Goto" feature, you have no idea where you are going to land. Be prepared, and if all else fails, tell them you're from India, and immediately ask everyone their ASL. Then get the hell out of there. Quick!

Another neat feature of chat clients that people probably never consider using to build their cam lists is the ability to log chat room conversations. I like the YahElite chat client from www.yahelite.org. It's free and it's much more powerful and stable than Messenger. It also doesn't have any advertisements on the screen when you use it.

Here is an example of what you can do with YahElite to build your cam list. If you use Messenger it will log you out of a chat room after an hour or two if you don't talk or move around to other rooms. YahElite on the other will not log you out of chat for not talking; in fact it will sometimes run for days with no interaction from you whatsoever. And it allows you to log everything said in the room and save it as a text file. With that in mind, you could take YahElite and log into one of the rooms such as ihooyah, where they trade cam names all day and night, and record the whole thing into a log file while you are at work or sleeping etc. Then at a convenient time, you simply open the log up and scroll through plucking out the names of the people on cam that were posted in the room.

That concludes my tips and tactics for viewing webcams; hopefully it will be of great benefit to you. The things I have talked about here have served me well to watch whatever I please, whenever I please!

WWW.CAMHOE.COM

© The information in this document is the intellectual property of www.camhoe.com and may not be redistributed, copied, sold, or used for any other purpose without written permission from the author.